Amended Version of the Scholarship Statement

There are two ways a candidate can meet the scholarship requirements for tenure. Inasmuch as the monograph is an important medium for the dissemination of historical research, the publication of a monograph with a university press or academic press that uses peer-review meets the requirements for tenure in the history department. A candidate may also meet the minimum requirements for tenure with two articles in scholarly peer-reviewed journals, as long as one of the articles presents research that does not duplicate part or all of the candidate's Ph.D. dissertation. Scholarship used to support a tenure application must be published after his/her employment began at Mount Saint Mary's University. The department will consider a book contract and the submission of a complete manuscript to be publisher a fulfillment of the publication requirement for tenure and promotion. In addition to the above stipulations, candidates should be able to demonstrate progress on a long-term research agenda.

All scholarship used to support a promotion application to professor must be published after the candidate received tenure at Mount Saint Mary's University. Since receiving tenure, candidates for the rank of professor need to have published a monograph with a university press or an academic press that uses peer-review or have published two articles in scholarly peer-reviewed journals, as long as one of the articles presents research that does not duplicate part or all of the candidate's Ph.D. dissertation. In addition to this, candidates should be able to demonstrate progress on a long-term research agenda.
